Caregivers, make yourself a priority.

It's okay to say no sometimes, even as a caregiver to a child with a bleeding disorder. When Krissy begins to feel overwhelmed, she gently tells her kids that she needs a moment alone, which has also taught them that it's okay to take a step back when they're overwhelmed. Today, Krissy shares the importance of making time for yourself as a caregiver.

Krissy M.'s Bio: Krissy finally got an answer to all of her son's strange childhood ailments when he was diagnosed with hemophilia at seven years old. With no family history of the illness, the diagnosis came out of left field. Krissy wanted to make sure that hemophilia didn't become an excuse for her son to get out of doing something, so after he learned to self-infuse at bleeding disorder camp, Krissy encouraged him to engage more during visits with his healthcare team. Krissy believes that tackling hemophilia as a family has helped her son find confidence. She is also a Common Factors® Advocate and her son has Hemophilia A.

DIY with Board & Brush of Greenville

Following Krissy, we'll be doing a fun DIY project with Board & Brush of Greenville! Their wood sign workshops are nationally known. They believe by educating you to understand and appreciate the beauty of raw materials—the wood, the knots, the color variations and the simple imperfections will help make your project unique. We don't know what the project will be yet, but we know you're going to love it!

Space is limited and registration is required by February 1st.
