

Your education connection.

Knowledge is power, and education is the key that unlocks that power. Sanofi is hosting a program that you may find helpful as you navigate life with hemophilia.

Let's Talk

Let's Talk is an immersive journey through the lives of five members of the U.S. bleeding disorders community, as they open their hearts and lives to show how we can gain strength through struggle, and that perhaps we aren't so different after all. Produced by Believe Limited, in partnership with Mental Health Matters Too, the film is intended to spark conversation, increase awareness, and decrease stigma. Following the screening, there will be a talk-back facilitated by Patrick James Lynch and Debbie de la Riva. Sponsored by Sanofi.
